

about the escape and recapture of their other prisoners. It seems probable that two or three, who left the main body, have arrived safe in the western settlements. The story of the action at Comargo is probably a fabrication in toto.

The Washington Farmer publishes a portion of the correspondence between the Texan chargé d'affaires at London, and Lord Aberdeen, in regard to the Mexican war steamers built and fitted out in Liverpool. His majesty's minister states that permission had been asked and refused for the vessels to arm in British ports; that it was the intention of the government to observe the strictest neutrality between Texas and Mexico, and that no English officer, holding the queen's commission, would be allowed to serve in the Mexican navy against Texas. The treasury of the republic has been ordered by the

It is stated, in the London papers, that Wordsworth has been induced, by letters from Sir Robert Peel, and the lord chamberlain, to accept the office of Poet Laureate, vacated by the death of Southey.

TEXAN REVOLUTION.

Republished (with additions) at Washington, D. C., from the Northampton (Mass.) Gazette.

To which is added,—

A LETTER FROM WASHINGTON, ON THE ANNIHILATION OF TEXAS, AND THE LATE OUTRAGE IN CALIFORNIA—RE-PUBLISHED, WITH ADDITIONS
FROM THE LIBRATOR. By Probus.

This is a pamphlet of about 100 large octavo pages.
Only a small part consists of the republications; the additions being ten or twelve times larger than the original.
The title is—

1. The history and merits of the Texan Revolution under the following heads:
 1. The perfidy of the President, and the lawless proceedings of citizens of the United States, who went to Texas "to sow a rebellion."
 2. Kindness, hospitality, and generosity of the Mexicans; ingratitude and treachery of the revolutionists.
 3. Pretexes of the Revolution. Under this head is given full account of the political changes which have taken place in Mexico, and of their causes:—the working of the Federative or Federal form of Government, as compared with the Consolidated or Central, in the South American States; a comparative history of Nullification in Mexico and the United States; the difference between the South American Federal and Central systems substantially that between our present form of government and the form proposed by ALEXANDER HAMILTON; the political history of the South American States, and the history and prospects of nullification in the United States some test of the comparative value of the two systems.

4. Real Causes of the Texan Revolution.

II. The subject of the second Prnt, or Letter, is the design of annexing Texas to this Union, at the first session of the next Congress. The subdivisions of this subject are:—

1. Review of a letter (said to have been, originally private,) of ex-Governor Gilmer, of Virginia, on the necessity of the speedy annexation of Texas.
2. The principles, speeches, reports, official correspondence, and operations of the leading and confidential friends of John Tyler, in the Cabinet, and in Congress the alliance between them and the leading members the democratic party for the extension and perpetuation of slavery and the slave trade, by the acquisition of Texas as and California; the outrage committed by Commodore Jones in the latter province, a part, and in execution, of the secret schemes of the cabinet, and a natural result of their spirit and purposes; the ostensible reasons for that outrage examined.

3. The determination and tendency of their policy in bringing about a war between the United States of the one part, and Mexico and Great Britain of the other; it is ing perfectly understood that the former cannot be depopled of territory fifteen times as large as the State of New-York, and eighty times as large as Massachusetts without war with Great Britain, as well as with her colonies.

4. The Oregon Bill, a part of the said schemes.

5. The questions of Visitation and Search, on the coast of Africa, for the arrest of slave trading pirates; the actual extent of the slave trade, and its exclusive prosecution under the American flag; the Quintuple and Ashburton Treaties, Gen. Cass's pamphlet and correspondence in France.

6. Negotiations of our government with Mexico for the cession of Texas and California, from the accession of Gen. Jackson to the present time; Character and proceedings of Messrs. Poinsett and Butler, ministers of the United States, in Mexico; suppression, and probable destruction of official documents; corruption brought to light; correspondence of Messrs. Webster and Thompson, with Messrs. de Bocanegra and Almonte; mistrust, in our Department of State, and in our Legations, at Mexico, of Mexican official documents.

1. John Quincy Adams's opinion of the conduct of our government towards Mexico, extracted from his address to his constituents, September 12, 1842.
2. Collection of Proclamations of neutrality, issued by Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Van Buren, and Tyler.

Ever in sight of all our bliss, moral light which has endured the thick darkness of eighteen hundred benighted centuries, and we at last perceive it, it will then have produced the beneficial results, and men will dwell in peace and joy, delivered from fear and sorrow, in the fullness of the presence of God. Then true worship will ascend continually to the Father from the altar of grateful hearts; every house and every field will become a temple, every man will be a priest, at the true Sabbath will extend its blessed rest over all time.

It was to promote this change in the general mind and heart, and to produce its happy result, especially with regard to the great right to life, that "Sometimes I have passed a whole day, leaning against a tree, with my eyes fixed on the ocean, fearful of losing a moment, in my desire of beholding a ship.

"The rainy season was very distressing to me, as my attempts to strike fire were always unavailing. At last deliverance came in the form of a fleet from Jamaica, which stopped to take in water.

"The sloop which received me was commanded by Captain Dove, a native of Salem, with whom I had been formerly acquainted. I was kindly treated
